Acknowledgements

We gratefully acknowledge the participation in the programs described herein of the speakers, many of whom did so without remuneration. Funding for the Human Rights and Compassionate Listening workshop was provided, in part, by the U.S. Institute for Peace which included funding for honorariums for the Keynote Speaker and members of the panel discussion of human rights in other cultures. We also provided modest tokens of appreciation in the form of coffee gift cards to guest discussants at the Great Discussions 2013 events.

Support for printing and other materials was provided by the International Education Department, which the GAC was a part of this past year. Members of the Worldly Philosophers and Dismal Scientists Society (WPDSS) student club provided financial support and labor, as well as regularly attend GAC events. Faculty and administrative employees of the college from across the campus, but especially in the Social Sciences division, were speakers and active participants in events. Thanks to Ann Garnsey-Harter, Mimi Harvey, Jeanette Idiart, Mari Kosin (and IE/IPM leaders), Lee Lambert, Tiffany Meier, Samira Pardanani, and Bob Zwingli (and HTC/PAL leaders). Special thanks go to members of the 2012-2013 class of Humphrey Fellows from the Evans School of Public Policy at the University of Washington for participating in events.

Planning and implementation depended on the initiative and energy of work-study students and in some cases volunteers. Chief among them was Ashley Alley, whose enthusiasm and energy for all things GAC was impressive. I’m happy to know that Ashley will be returning to assist the GAC next year. Rebecca Dallin provided work-study support during fall and winter quarters. Much of the assessment data which is included in this report was compiled and reported by Rebecca. Help passing out flyers, collecting audience feedback and moving the cordless microphone around the audience came from many folks, but some of the regulars were Ashley Alley (I said she was energetic), Meg Fuell, and Yifan Sun.

The support of the Public Information Office was again critical to growing public awareness of and support for GAC programs both on and off campus. Larry Cheng and his able assistants recorded many of the speaker events. The Print Shop, the Facilities department, and Chartwells provided logistical assistance throughout the year.

Our final and most heart-felt “thank you” goes to the audience members who participated in these events, many of whom we call “regulars,” and who in many cases contributed funds that allowed us to provide coffee and tea for the audience, and thank you gifts to many of our participants. Their support is what keeps us working hard and striving to do better!

I would like to dedicate this year’s report to former President Lee Lambert who left Shoreline to become the chancellor at Pima Community College in Tuscan, Arizona on July 1, 2013. Lee was a huge fan of the GAC and I count him as one of my greatest supporters at the college. We all wish him the greatest success in his new position.
Summary of 2012-2013 Accomplishments

Program accomplishments in 2012-2013 included:

- An evening symposium offering reflections on the impact of presidential electoral politics on U.S. foreign policy
- An evening symposium on the state of global food security and farming
- Several Global Eyes daytime events featuring Shoreline students, faculty and staff, as well as off-campus guests
- Evening discussions about six specific global affairs/foreign policy issues with a group of interested students and community members
- A daylong workshop on Human Rights co-sponsored with the SCC Listening Tree Club

All of these activities supported the college’s campus internationalization initiative, the college’s core themes, and the college’s successful accreditation efforts in the fall of 2012.

We began the year as the 2012 U.S. presidential race was heating up by examining the impact of electoral politics on two key foreign policy relationships: with China and with Europe; and in two key issue areas: trade policy and defense policy. Evening discussions were complimented with daytime speaker events and debates, including a visit by a sitting Washington State Supreme Court Justice, a panel discussion involving Humphrey Fellows (mid-level professionals from other countries) who talked about how the U.S. is viewed from overseas, and a debate sponsored by the WPDSS (Worldly Philosophers and Dismal Scientists Society) student club on the strengths and weaknesses of the two principal Presidential candidates. If attendance is any measure of success, this was a successful series with attendance at most events exceeding 50 students and community members.

International Education week, a national celebration of all-things international on campus, was a chance to showcase the globe-trotting of Shoreline employees and students, including an administrative director who served on the Washington State Governor’s trade mission to India, members of two student peer mentor teams, and a panel discussion of the study abroad experience of Shoreline students.

A second symposium this academic year focused on global food security and farming issues. We had the good fortune that a European food safety expert was in town and willing to share some of his knowledge with us. A water specialist from western Washington brought a global perspective to questions regarding irrigation and water tables. Specialists from Oxfam and the Gates Foundation spoke about the challenges of food security and agriculture in developing countries.

For the fourth year, the GAC organized a Great Discussions series utilizing material from the Foreign Policy Association. Twenty-four students and community members participated. This year’s palette of foreign policy issues included Egypt, Myanmar, Iran, Chinese support in Africa, humanitarian intervention, and setting defense priorities. Briefing materials each week included a background paper, a short video, and remarks by an invited guest before the participants launched their own discussions with each other.

Throughout the year “Global Eyes” brownbag discussions took place, led by students, faculty, staff, and members of the off-campus community, regarding their travel, research or service overseas. They included discussions of migrant labor from the Philippines to South Korea, political changes occurring in Myanmar, working at a rural institute for women in India, and talking with residents of the Basque Country of France.
The GAC co-directed with the SCC Listening Tree Project (a humanities project that employs interactive theatre to enhance understanding and encourage action) a workshop on Human Rights. Funding was provided, in part, by the U.S. Institute of Peace. More than 50 students, employees of the college and members of the community participated in the day-long project. Five Humphrey Fellows from the University of Washington's Evan School of Public Affairs participated in a panel discussion of Human Rights in countries as diverse as Haiti, Nepal, Pakistan, Rwanda, and Sri Lanka. The goals of the workshop were to enhance understanding of human rights from an inter-cultural perspective, and to demonstrate the utility of interactive theatre for promoting understanding and resolving complex international issues.

Assessment Data

Assessment data are provided after each event or series in the appendices below.

We gathered these data at nearly all events. Participation by community members was stronger at evening events, although there has been a gradual increase in the number of students who attend these events. Participation at the Great Discussions was intentionally limited to 25 (24 registered) in order to encourage engagement and exchanges by all present.

As in previous years, the data confirmed that participants learned something at these events and enjoyed the speakers and exchanges between speaker and audience members. More than one commented that they were pleased to meet other community members who shared their interest in participating in these events. We continue to be confident that these events are promoting community engagement and meaningful interactions.

Similarly, we also heard some things that will help us to improve future offerings, such as:

- Brief presentations that provide sufficient time for discussion are most popular
- Speakers with hands-on experience with an issue are often the more interesting and informative
- We have been trying with some success, and will keep trying, to encourage audience members to submit their questions in writing

Audience members suggested various topics for future discussions which will be considered.
Mission

The Global Affairs Center promotes student success and community engagement through programs that promote global awareness, critical thinking and multicultural understanding in support of the campus internationalization and the core themes of the College.

Activities

- Symposiums – speakers and discussions around particular global themes
- Global Eyes – daytime speaker/discussion/workshop events that highlight student, faculty, and staff interests and experiences regarding global topics
- Great Discussions – seminar discussions of select contemporary foreign policy issues. Participants register in advance.
- Learning Moments – impromptu discussions of global events, such as humanitarian emergencies, economic crises, and political changes that offer opportunities for “meaningful engagements” that are the hallmark of a world-class center of learning.
- Partnerships with Campus and Global Education Organizations – The GAC works with SCC student clubs, and other educational/public affairs organizations to promote international education, including:
  - The Worldly Philosophers and Dismal Scientists Society (WPDSS) student club
  - Global Washington
  - The World Affairs Council of Seattle
  - The Washington Council on International Trade
  - The Washington State China Relations Council
  - The Evans School of Public Affairs/Humphrey Fellows Program, UW

Benefits

- Supports campus internationalization
- Aids global awareness, multicultural understanding, and general intellectual ability
- Enhances the outreach efforts of the college
- Advances the college’s commitment to student success and program excellence
- Builds partnerships with local businesses, schools, public offices, and international partners

Global Food and Farming Issues
Winter Quarter Symposium
February, 2013

Food is fundamental to human existence much like water, housing and energy. Issues of food and food production (or farming) are viewed through so many different lenses: culture, development, science and health, economics and politics. This series explores key issues that dominate global food and farming today.

I WANT TO UNDERSTAND YOU
Listening to Others about Human Rights Issues

Workshop on Compassionate Listening and Human Rights Across Cultures
Shoreline Community College
May 18, 2013 8:30am – 5pm
9208 PUB

"Where, after all, do universal human rights begin? In small places, close to home … where every man, woman, and child seeks equal justice, equal opportunity, equal dignity without discrimination. Unless these rights have meaning there, they have little meaning … in the larger world."

Eleanor Roosevelt, Remarks at the United Nations, March 27, 1958

Sponsored by
International Education/Global Affairs Center
The Listening Tree Project
Funding from the U.S. Institute of Peace
Lunch and refreshments provided

Program

• Keynote Speaker: Ethan Casey, international journalist and writer, “Bearing the Bruise: Compassionate Listening and Human Rights.”
• Panel discussion on the meaning of “Human Rights” across cultures with individuals from Benin, Haiti, Pakistan, Rwanda and Sri Lanka
• A demonstration of compassionate listening and interactive theater
• Audience skits that illustrate the complexity of Human Rights

Goals

• To enhance understanding of human rights from an inter-cultural perspective
• To demonstrate compassionate listening and interactive theater skills for resolving human rights and other complex international issues

If you would like to participate, please register online at www.shoreline.edu/understand/. If you have further questions, contact Sarah Zale at szale@shoreline.edu, 206-546-4655; or, Larry Fuell at lfuell@shoreline.edu, 206-533-6750.

Global Affairs Center Team, 2012-2013

Lawrence D. (Larry) Fuell
Director, Global Affairs
International Education Department

Larry is the Founding Director of the Global Affairs Center (GAC) and a Political Science faculty member. When the GAC was combined with International Education, Larry became the Director of Global Affairs. Prior to joining Shoreline’s faculty in 2006, Larry served more than 20 years in the U.S. government, including as a Foreign Agricultural Affairs Officer in U.S. embassies in Peru, China and Guatemala. He has taught at Concordia College in Moorhead, MN, and at the University of Jos in Nigeria, and has traveled in Africa, Asia, Europe, and Latin America. Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Larry earned his B.A. degree at Miami University (Oxford, Ohio) and his PhD in Political Science at the University of Kentucky.

Yifan Sun
Manager, International Education Manager/China Specialist
International Education Department

As Manager of International Education at International Education Department Yifan plays a key role in planning and implementing Global Affairs Center activities. With her background in the fields of Education and Economics Yifan is well suited to advance campus internationalization. Yifan specializes in developing and promoting international internships, study abroad, summer institutes, and exchange programs with partners in China and in other countries. She earned a B.A in Economics from Nankai University, China, and a M.A. degree in Multicultural Education from University of Washington.

Work-Study Support

Ashley Alley

Ashley assist with marketing, updating contact information, attending and assisting at speaking events all the while immensely enjoying the opportunity to take part in the symposiums the Global Affairs Council has to offer. Alley is working towards a Biotechnology Lab Specialist transfer degree to the University of Washington with a double major in Anthropology. She enjoys Depeche Mode, bacteria reproduction and viral infection, human beings, and watching Mr. Fuell hunt for papers he misplaced on his desk.

Rebecca Dallin

Rebecca helps keep students informed about the Global Affairs Center and its events by distributing materials, making sure the contact list is up to date, and updating GAC web accounts. You will see her sometimes assisting at GAC events, but she spends most of her time in the Visual Communications Technology building where she is working toward an AA degree in VCT. She has a BA in English and loves to write, draw, and to read with a cat in her lap. After she finishes her degree here at Shoreline, she plans to work in multimedia art and animation, possibly in the field of casual games.
