A thousand words. The literary value that has been assigned to what a picture is worth. We call this collection of photography 1000 Words because we believe it would take at least that many words to describe each of the captivating and engaging images you are about to experience. For each issue we select photographs that we feel best illustrate a theme, location, word, or emotion.

This magazine is the result of the efforts of the f-Stop Photography Club, and organization of art, design, and photography students at Shoreline Community College.
Welcome to Issue 3 of 1000 Words. The theme for this issue is ‘Nocturnal.’ Here we explore the many worlds of the night, in all its’ mystery and complexity. Through the ages, many artists have been fascinated with the realm of night. Vincent Van Gogh said “I often think that the night is more alive and more richly colored than the day.” While George Eliot wrote: “O radiant Dark! O darkly fostered ray! Thou hast a joy too deep for shallow Day.” Like the many artists before us, we too find inspiration in the otherworldly beauty that unfolds when the sun goes down. Please enjoy these images from our forays into the world of the night.

Narrative in this volume is sparse to nonexistent in order to give the viewer space for contemplation, and to allow the photographs to speak for themselves.
